LYNN OFFICIAL IS SUSTAINED

Water Commissioner Thomas Campbell, 26, of Lynn, was charged to-day at a meeting of the Municipal Council of that city, of which he is a member, with working for the Boston & Maine Railroad while holding office.

The council voted unanimously to give Nichols petition leave to withdraw.

A sensation was caused at the meeting of the Council by the introduction of a petition by George D. Nichols, ex-Lynn Democratic leader, making the charges and calling for a public investigation.

Campbell is a Republican. Nichols is of the same political faith and is a candidate for Water Commissioner, the position to which Campbell was elected last year by a heavy majority. The petition, which is signed by more than 100 voters, reads as follows:

We, the undersigned registered voters of Lynn, respectfully petition your honorable body to call a special meeting of voters. The purpose of which shall be to investigate, consider and take appropriate action concerning the acts of Thomas Campbell, 2d, while holding public office with respect to his employment by parties other than the city of Lynn, in connection with the purpose by the Boston & Maine Railroad Company of about $1,000,000 worth of property, and also for having claims made by private parties as the agent of the said Boston & Maine Railroad Company, and as to the consideration which he has received and is to receive for such services.

Is a Candidate for Re-election.

Nichols alleges that Campbell, who is a candidate for re-election, has been employed before and since his election to the Municipal Council as an appraiser for the Boston & Maine in connection with purchases of property made necessary by the grade crossing abolition work. Some of the property purchased was in Central square.

Campbell as a member of the Council, sat in that body while the petition and charges against him were read. He made no remarks, however, and the petition was put over until later in the day.

Nothing Criminal in Charge.

Mr. Nichols said in regard to the petition:

"I am not charging Mr. Campbell with anything criminal, only I maintain it is a good authority that he receives $50 a day for his services as appraiser for the Boston & Maine. Whether he has a right to do this while employed by the city at a salary of $3,000 a year is what I and the citizens want to know."

Mayor Connery of Lynn, a member of the Municipal Council, said: "I am strongly opposed to placing a member of the Municipal Council under an investigation, as the result of a petition signed by one man. If there is any wrongdoing among the members of the council, I want to know it. It is unfair of Nichols to bring this matter to the attention of the council just before the election.

"If 500 voters will sign a petition asking for an investigation of Campbell's connection with the Boston & Maine Railroad, I will be glad to arrange for such an investigation."

VENUS ALMOST IN LUNAR ECLIPSE

BERKELEY, Cal., Nov. 17.—The moon and Venus were in conjunction at noon yesterday. The phenomenon was observed by members of the astronomy department of the University of California, and by hundreds of persons, as both moon and star were visible to the naked eye against a clear blue sky. The eclipse to the astronomical event was reached about 4 p. m., when Venus apparently was touching the lower horn of the moon's crescent. The planet passed behind, being eclipsed by the moon.

KAISER ARRESTS CROWN PRINCE

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Crown Prince Frederick William was to-day ordered under military arrest and confined to his quarters at Danzig for thirty days for the recent action which he precipitated in the Reichstag by aligning himself openly against the policies of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg and virtually placing himself at the head of the war party.

The Reichstag outbreak came as a result of debate over the Franco-German Moroccan accord, which the Pugoes in Germany oppose.

The arrest of the Crown Prince was ordered by the Emperor, who was incensed at his son's action before the Reichstag.

For the past week all Berlin has expected the arrest of both the Crown Prince and his brother, Prince Augustus William.

Crown Prince Frederick has set himself up as the head of the German Jingo party. The Kaiser was furious at the actions of the two princes and other members of the royal family during the debate in the Reichstag when the Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, defended his course in the Moroccan dispute with France.

The princes made themselves conspicuous during the debate at every opportunity from their seats in the front of the royal box. Crown Princess Cecelia was with her husband, attracting additional attention by her high black and red umbrella, but she wore.

Opponents of the government, especially in the seats of the Centrists or Catholic party and the Socialists, kept their eyes on the royal box and smiled approvingly at the openly expressed disapproval of the two princes and for crown princess to the explanations of the chancellor.

Germany Was Astonished.

Surprise was expressed on all sides at the daring of the Crown Prince in ranging himself so openly in opposition to his father, whose rule in the family is as stern and in many instances as tyrannical as any of the old Hohenzollerns of the middle ages.

On all sides of the chamber it was said that the Kaiser was likely to resent the open hostility toward Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg as aimed at himself.

Apparently the two efforts were unnoticed by the fear. When the Chancellor in his address referred to Dr. Llodquist, who resigned as Colonial Secretary rather than defend the Moroccan agreement before the Reichstag the Crown Prince clapped his hands and slapped his royal brother on the back.

The Chancellor could not help noticing this action, but kept on with his remarks, however, were lost in the hum of whispers that filled the Diet during part of the Prince, which said even more plainly than if he had uttered it, "Dr. Llodquist did just right."

Shakes Head at Chancellor.

The Crown Prince kept shaking his head every time Bethmann-Hollweg urged that his course had been dictated by a regard for the real interests of Germany.

But the most daring exploit of Prince William, in the minds of most of the people, was his sensible shake of the head when the Chancellor declared that all through the negotiations the Kaiser had stood back of him and had insisted on strict adherence to the principles as stipulated by the Chancellor. Not so many years ago this action would have been regarded as lese majeste, especially when committed by the half-apparent of any member of the imperial family.

CHELSEA FIRE STIRS OFFICIAL SCRUTINY

Deputy Chief George C. Neal of the district police is investigating a fire which occurred Wednesday afternoon in the house at No. 170 Third street, Chelsea, to ascertain whether it originated from incendiary causes. One of the fire inspectors of the department is to be Chelsea in connection with the investigation. To-morrow morning Deputy Neal will examine several persons at his office at the State House.

POLICE FIRE AT FLEEING MEN

Cambridge police reserves, aided by several hundred officers, engaged in an exciting chase to-day trying to re-capture two prisoners who broke away from Chief Green of the Stoneham police at the entrance of the East Cambridge jail and fled before the shots of the police chief.

The fugitives are John H. Murphy and Frank J. Long, who are accused of breaking and entering in Stoneham and who were held for trial in the Malden police court. The men were remanded to jail to await trial.

Boston police officers scoured the district about the West Boston and East Cambridge bridges, as it was believed the fugitives might try to cross into Boston. A large squad of officers searched the freight sheds and cars in the Boston & Maine yard at East Cambridge, where it was believed the men might have hidden.

Prisoners Were Handcuffed.

Chief Green had the two prisoners handcuffed and was at the entrance to the jail when he received a suggestion how and the men broke and ran. They had broken free from the handcuff and dashed down Third street towards Cambridgeport.

Chief Green opened fire, but the two men did not stop. The men jumped over a fence and were lost to view.

Long is nineteen years old and lives at No. 260 Commercial street, Malden. He was released on bail from the State Farm a week ago where he was sentenced for drunkenness. He has served two terms in the Lyman school.

Murphy is 17 years old and lives at No. 53 Madison street, Malden. The Malden police say a case of breaking and entering against him was pending in the and that he was once fined $75 for larceny.

Accused of Entering Shop.

In the Woburn district court to-day the two young men were charged with breaking and entering a blacksmith shop of the New England Sanitorium at Stoneham. They were held in $200 bonds for trial on Monday and in default of bail were taken to the East Cambridge jail by Chief Sumner Green.

He went to Cambridge by train and got off at the Third Street Station. He walked towards the jail in the custody of Chief Green when they gave a wrench and broke the chain which connected the handcuffs. They hit Chief Green, throwing him to one side and dashed off, one with a steel handcuff with a piece of chain dangling from his left wrist and the other with a handcuff and a piece of chain on the left wrist.

B. & A. TRAIN SERVICE FOR FOOTBALL GAME

The Boston & Albany Railroad will run eight special trains to Allston to-morrow to accommodate persons going to the Harvard-Dartmouth game at the Stadium. These trains will leave track 1 and track 2 at the South station at five-minute intervals from 12:55 p. m. to 1:30 p. m., and all specials will make the Trinity place stop. After the game there will be four special trains direct to Boston, one special train to South Framingham, running express to Wellesley Farms and making all stops beyond, and one special train to Riverside and thence to Boston via Newton Highlands, making local stops from Fairoll.

JAIL SENTENCES FOR SHOPLIFTING

Judge Murray to-day threatened to jail every shoplifter that appeared before him in the future. He said this when hearing the case of Mrs. Ethel Whitten of Elmer road, Dorchester, who was charged with the larceny of a silverwaiter from a department store. She asked for leniency, saying that she had a two-months-old baby at home. Judge Murray told her that she would find her $25 instead of giving her a jail sentence, only because she had a baby at home.

PALMER COUNSEL CLASH

Slips for the refreshments enjoyed by certain members of the Middlesex Grand Jury at the City Club on the evening of November 1 figured prominently in the evidence to-day at the hearing before Judge McLaughlin at East Cambridge on Attorney Jackson Palmer's motion to have the indictment for perjury against him quashed on the ground that it was illegally drawn.

These slips showed that eight members of the Grand Jury had a private dining room which cost $2, a special waiter that cost $2, and that they dieted between them four steaks worth $3.20, French fried potatoes valued at 80 cents, six cigars at 10 cents each and two cigars at 25 cents each, making a total of $8.80 spent on the jurymen.

Lawrence F. Smith, a private detective, was the star witness to-day.

The hearing session was marked by frequent clashes between District-Attorney Higgins and Sherman L. Whipple, senior counsel for Jackson Palmer, who seeks to have the perjury indictment on which he stands convicted quashed, claiming that it was drawn illegally.

During these verbal encounters, Mr. Higgins exclaimed:

"We have been dealing with the sacred duties of the Grand Jury."

"I see you have," replied Mr. Whipple.

"And you have, very queerly," retorted Mr. Higgins.

"But I am not charged with the responsibility," replied Mr. Whipple.

Interviewed Jurors.

At this point Judge McLaughlin requested the wrangling counsel to proceed.

The attendance at the courtroom increased rapidly as soon as it was learned that the records that "Larry" Smith was on the stand.

Smith testified that he lives at No. 18 Hancock avenue, Jamaica Plain, and that he has been a private investigator for ten years. He admitted having interviewed a number of grand jurors, concerning their action in the Palmer case, and testified that he paid several of them $5 each for the loss of time incident to their leaving their work to come to Boston to confer with counsel.

When asked by District Attorney Higgins if he was not sometimes known as a private detective, Mr. Smith created considerable merriment by replying: "I am known as a detective by some of my enemies, yes."

Mr. Sweetnam was questioned by District Attorney Higgins in re-direct examination.

Grand Jury Proceedings.

Cross-examination by Attorney Whipple:

Q.—During the past week or two have you ridden to Lowell with Mr. Higgins? A.—No, sir; I went by train.

Q.—During the year you had a regular course of procedure in regard to briefing people charged with offences, didn't you?

District Attorney Higgins objected and Judge McLaughlin ruled that the witness might answer "Yes or "No." A.—Yes.

Mr. Whipple then made a statement to the court and made an offer of proof showing the proceedings adopted at the beginning of the year in regard to the matter of indicting persons. He stated that when a case came up the District Attorney or foreman would say: "This is the case of the Commonwealth against So and So"; thereupon witnesses would be called and after being heard the jury would be asked to vote by raising of hands whether a true bill or a no bill had been found, and the result would be announced.

District Attorney Higgins again objected and said:

"Your Honor, the statutes guard very sacredly the records of procedure of the Grand Jury, and I have no knowledge that any case of want a juror sold or did has been allowed to extend as far as in this case."

Judge McLaughlin remarked: "I think that is so, too."

Attorney Higgins said: "I would like to have a correction made in this statement;

SEAVER PLEADS "NOT GUILTY"

Augustus S. Seaver, who filed papers for nomination for Governor on a labor ticket, pleaded not guilty when arraigned to-day before Judge Sanderson in the Superior Criminal Court on an indictment with eight counts charging him with false making nomination papers and two counts in filing such papers, and was held in $2,000 bail. It was said that bail would be furnished later in the day.

Attention was first called to the case when Seaver was charged before the Board of Election Commissioners by Chairman McGrath of the Democratic State Committee, with having scores of names on his nomination papers that had never been written by their owners. At the hearing before the election board it was brought out that canvassers employed to get names on Seaver's nomination papers had written in hundreds of signatures of voters themselves without even asking the owners if they favored Seaver's candidacy.

Following the hearing the matter was brought to the attention of District-Attorney Pelletier and placed before the Grand Jury.

It is expected that two or three other arrests will be made in the case. The District Attorney's office has been working on the matter since Seaver's nomination papers were thrown out by the Election Board on the ground that they were illegal and fraudulent.

Seaver was indicted on two charges. The first one contains eight counts, charging him with "falsely making a certain nomination paper purporting to be the nomination of Augustus Seaver for Governor," and the other charge, in which are two counts, accused him of "filing with the Secretary of the Commonwealth a nomination paper he knew to have been falsely made."

G. H. SWEETNAM, MIDDLESEX GRAND JURY FOREMAN

SPENCER SLEW PETS OF WIFE IN HIS RAGE

SPRINGFIELD, Nov. 17.—In addition to testimony that Bertram G. Spencer was subject to ungovernable fits of rage, the statement was made from the witness stand to-day that he brutally slew his young wife's pet cat and canary.

Mrs. Martin Krailman testified to this. She is the grandmother of Mrs. Minnie Spencer, the prisoner's wife. Mrs. Krailman, following her husband on the witness stand, said that Spencer killed Mrs. Spencer's canary bird, also took Mrs. Spencer's cat and dashed its brains out against a fence.

RELATIVES TELL OF PRISONER'S ACTION.

A succession of Spencer's relatives to-day took the witness stand to recount the cruelties of the prisoner. Their stories were interspersed with testimony of acquaintances of the defendant along similar lines. This accumulation of evidence was designed by teh defence to show that Spencer is to some extent the meaning of the law, and that he was insane at the time he slew Miss Martha B. Blackstone, for whose murder he is now on trial.

Mrs. Cordelia H. Pultz, Spencer's only sister, testified to his temper. Martin Krailman and Mrs. Krailman, Mrs. Spencer's grandparents, added their stories. Herman, A. Amberg, father of Mrs. Spencer, said that he forbade Spencer the house, but that his daughter, Minnie Amberg, ran away with Spencer and was married to him. The father-in-law testified to ungovernable rages of Spencer.

Before the morning session closed the defence had put on a long string of witnesses to give additional testimony tending to show Spencer is insane.

Martin Krailing of Springfield, whose wife is grandmother of young Mrs. Spencer, corroborated the story told by Spencer's sister, Mrs. Cordelia Pultz, in regard to Spencer's outburst of rage at the boathouse key incident. Mr. Krailing said that, because he would not give the key to Spencer, the latter rushed at him with eyes bulging.

"It took the combined efforts of Mrs. Spencer and of Mr. and Mrs. Pultz to restrain him," added Mr. Krailing. "I was afraid of him. He always acted queerly. But he never did anything before so bad as that. He's crazy."

Crazy Outbreaks.

Mrs. Elizabeth Krailing, grandmother of Mrs. Minnie Spencer, took the stand. She is sixty-three years old. The Krailings lived at one time upstairs over the Spencers at No. 47 Porter street, West Springfield.

Trembling and with shaking voice Mrs. Krailing said:

"Time again Bertram showed crazy outbreaks. His wife had a pet canary. Spencer killed it one day in a rage. He took her pet kitty and smashed its brains out against a fence and buried the body out on the lee. At times, in these spells, his eyes bulged and his face grew red. At the time of the boat key trouble I heard him say of Mr. Krailing: 'Let me get at him. I'll throw him into the river. I'll put an end to him.'"

As Mrs. Krailing closed her testimony and bobbled off the stand she said: "He's crazy. This remark brought prompt objection by the State. But, as Mrs. Krailing passed by the jury box, she repeated: "He's crazy, just the same."

Henry R. Hart of Niantic, Ct., a typical Yankee farmer, testified that the late William L. Spencer, grandfather of the prisoner, was an "old crank," "queer" and "eccentric."

Miss Hilda Wyman, a Springfield nurse who boarded at the same time Spencer did in two different boarding houses, testified to Spencer's queer acts.

Objected to Food.

She said that one time he threw a platter of meat across the room, saying: "It isn't fit for a dog to eat." But others who had eaten from the same meat found no fault with it.

Miss Wyman said all at the house began to think Spencer "queer," that he threatened to kill people because he thought they talked about him, because he thought something was stolen from his room and because he thought they were using the hair-and then bowed his head in his hands again. He continued to tremble from head to foot. He seemed, as before, ready to break forth into wails and protests.

CALL SPENCER'S FATHER AS WITNESS

Turned On His Sister.

Mrs. Pultz was questioned by Attorney Richard P. Stapleton.

Q.—Do you recall any unusual incident at your brother's home when you were there at any time? A.—I do.

Q.—Will you state what that was? A.—I went to visit my brother. I was playing the piano in the parlor, and we were spending a very pleasant evening. There were some guests there besides the family. Bertram was sitting upon a couch. All at once he jumped up and began to swear at me. I ceased playing, and he demanded that I tell him why I had not visited him efrlier. I told him that I was not welcome at home. His face was livid. He frothed at the mouth and was very excited.

Q.—Were you present at Lebanon when he had an outbreak over a violin? A.—I was not.

Tells of Excitement.

Q.—Do you recall any other occasion besides the one in his house, where you were playing the piano, that Bertram had any other outbreak. A.—Yes. Shortly after that incident Bertram invited my husband and myself and his wife to a boat-ride on the river. We went down to the boathouse conducted by a man named Kralling. My brother asked Mr. Kralling for the key so as to get the oars and cushions, but Mr. Kralling said that he did not have the key. Then Bertram flew into a rage. He told Mr. Kralling that he did have the key and that it looked as if he did not want to have us go out on the river.

Bertram's face took on the same livid color that it always did when he became enraged. He frothed at the mouth, began to swear and attempted to strike Mr. Kralling. It took all we could do to hold him back. I grabbed him around the neck myself and my husband grabbed him around the waist. His wife held one of his arms. It was a long time before we had him pacified.

Mother Near Prisoner.

The courtroom was again jammed to capacity. Spencer was brought in and locked in the cage. Then his mother came in and sat on the little bench which is placed next to the cage. This bench seats three people. The mother moved close to the cage. She squeezed three fingers of her right hand through the cage bars. Spencer clutched the fingers.

"Good morning, mother," said the prisoner.

"My boy, how are you?" said Mrs. Spencer.

"Oh, I'm very well," replied Spencer in shaking voice.

"Keep up courage, Bert," said the mother.

"I'll try to, mother," he answered.

Just then Mrs. Pultz came up to the cage. She put her fingers through the bars. Spencer shook hands with her as best he could. Then Mrs. Pultz moved away, to get ready to take the stand.

The next one to approach the cage was young Mrs. Spencer, wife of the prisoner. The mother moved over on the settee to give the wife a chance to get to the cage. The wife reached in the cage and took hold of her husband's hand, holding it throughout the sister's testimony.

Following Mrs. Pultz, Ernest L. Latimer, school teacher of New Salem, Ct., testified that he observed the marks and bruises on Bertram Spencer's body in the latter's schooldays.

"Bertram told me," said Latimer, "that his father beat him terribly, that the marks were made by hickory sticks and that often the sticks were broken on his back."

Gardner J. Oaks, farmer of Bernardston, testified that Spencer came to his house after being expelled from Mt. Hermon School. He worked for Mr. Oaks for a while. Oaks said Spencer would often have a wild light in his eyes, that he quarreled with the other farm hands for no cause and that he stayed at the Oaks farm only a few weeks.

Robert H. Gordon, a seventy-seven year old farmer of Lebanon, testified that he knew the late William L. Spencer, grandfather of the prisoner, very well.

Q.—What was his mental condition? A.—He was weak-minded the last years of his life.

Had Ambitious Plan.

Q.—How do you reason that he was weak-minded? A.—I had a piece of land on the top of a high hill and the old man wanted to buy it and said he was going to build a large factory on it. He had no money. I asked him how he was going to run the factory, and he said he was going to get water up there some way and run it by water power.

Q.—Did you sell him the top of the hill? A.—Of course I didn't.

Q.—Any other peculiarities of the grandfather? A.—Well, if anybody crossed the old man he'd fly into a rage and threaten to kill him.

Q.—What do you know about Ambrose, the great-grandfather? A.—He was worse off mentally than old Bill.

Spencer "Queer as a Boy."

Harriett Henrietta Post, eighty-five, of Newington, Ct., took care of Spencer's mother at her home in Lebanon. She knew Bertram as a boy "to be queer and strange." He wanted his own way in everything and would go into a rage unless he had it. His father used to beat him. She recalled one occasion when the father took Bertram to the woodshed and threatened to chop his head off. The witness said Spencer beat the frightened boy with a hickory stick.

Herman A. Amberg, whose daughter Minnie married Bertram Spencer, testified that the marriage was a runaway affair and after he had told Spencer not to call at the house.

"He was a peculiar fellow and always making trouble. He came to my house one Sunday after I had forbidden him to call and started to take my girl away forcibly. I would have given him a good licking that day only for my wife locking the door on me. He didn't get the girl that time, but she ran away a few days later and got married.

"I didn't see him again for a year. Then we became reconciled and I got him work down to Handy's packing establishment, where I had worked myself for twenty-seven years.

Always in Trouble.

"He was always in trouble with the men there. He showed a violent temper and on the least provocation would flare up and throw anything he had in his hand at the men.

"Once he threw a hatchet at one of the workmen. Another time he threatened to kill a man. After one of these quarrels he locked himself in the refrigerator for half an hour. It was all I could do to get him out. I had to plead and coax him to come out.

"His face was flushed, his eyes bulged from his head and he was trembling all over. He threatened to kill me, too."

Henry W. Richardson, a lawyer in a department store at Hartford, Ct., was the next witness. He said:

"Spencer worked with me about twelve years ago. He was a good, quiet fellow at times, but had an uncontrollable temper, and flew into a rage quickly. He said his father ran a store in Lebanon, Ct.

"When I asked him why he left a store that was practically his own, to work in a department store, he said his father abused him so that he had run away from home. He showed me marks and traces of bruises inflicted, he said, by his father."

The sending for the father by counsel for the defence after all that Mrs. Spencer and the prisoner has said against him and the willingness of the defence lawyer to have him testify adds another to the many strange conditions that have loved a remarkable trial.

Bertram Spencer himself may take the witness stand in his own behalf, it is followed by the alienists, that the jury may see for themselves just the kind of man on trial for his life and determine for themselves, regardless of what the alienists may say, whether the confessed masked robber and murderer is sane or insane. Today it was definitely announced that the experts would be the last witnesses for the defence.

The father, wife, and the prisoner himself are expected to furnish the titans of testimony tending to show that Spencer is insane, with the experts simply pointing out as Alienists how the testimony of these witnesses upholds that condition.

Today two more alienists were added to th staff of the Government. Seated directly to the left of the cage, they are taking copious notes, while no a movement of the prisoner escapes their observation.

John C. Nolan, 173 K St., So. Boston, Mass., says, "I had backache, pains in my head, dizzy spells and urine scalded terribly. I treated with physicians and finally went to Congress. Instead of growing better, I grew worse and left the hospital entirely discouraged. Luckily I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, and was completely cured. NEW ASTEROID IS DISCOVERED

The Rev. Joel H. Metcalf, the clergyman-astronomer of Winchester, has notified the Harvard Observatory that he has photographed an asteroid that appeared to be new. Mr. Metcalf also discovered and photographed a strange asteroid exactly three years ago, but there is doubt as to whether the newly discovered one is the same.

The observatory forces trained their lenses on the constellation areas where the asteroid was believed to be moving, and the discovery was confirmed.

As the astronomers watched it, the asteroid passed into the constellation Pisces. Two interesting things about the new asteroid distinguished it from seven hundred others of its kind. One is its brilliancy, which is about 10.5 magnitude, and no other is its rapid change in declination, being that of twelve minutes per day for twenty days.

Three photographs were taken at the observatory with the aid of a sixteen-inch Metcalf telescope.

In accord with custom, the asteroid will be named in honor of the discoverer. The news of the discovery will be flashed to the entire scientific world. Mr. Metcalf has discovered nine other asteroids.

NEURASTHENIA

Another Name for Nervous Exhaustion.

How It Is Caused and How It Can Be Cured Without Leaving Your Home.

Neurasthenia is the physician's name for a condition of weakness or exhaustion of the nervous system. The patient finds difficulty in keeping his mind on his work, is inclined to worry over trifles, is often depressed and irritable, is subject to headaches or a feeling of pressure on the head, is sleepless and some times the digestion is disturbed. Overwork or worry is often the cause. The treatment consists largely in rest, recreation and the use of a tonic, the discontinuance of any practice that may have caused the trouble and abstinence from tea, coffee and stimulants. As the nerves receive their nourishment through the blood the latter must be built up and made rich and pure. Especially if there is loss of weight and a pallor indicating a weakness of the blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are the tonic best adapted to effect a cure.

Mrs. James H. Dyer, of No. 818 Princeton street, Lowell, Mass., says: "I was a sufferer from nervous debility for years. I felt weak all of the time and could not stand any physical strain. I had frequent sick headaches and often fainted away. I was worried all of the time and was very much discouraged.

"The doctors said I had neurasthenia, or nervous debility, and advised a complete rest and change but I was unable to take them because of my children. For years I was under treatment and had given up hope of a cure. A friend who had been cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People urged me to try them. I was much stronger after a short trial of the pills and resolved to keep on with them. My health is now much better than it has been in years and I recommend the pills very highly."

Every person who is interested in the home treatment of nervous disorders should send for the new edition of our booklet entitled, "Diseases of the Nervous System, Their Nature, Symptoms and Treatment." Address the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain no harmful or habit-forming drugs, and the sufferer who gives them a trial will avoid the danger so common in taking drugs which only deaden pain.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

The Modern American Beauty as Artists See Her

Paintings by Noted Artists Show Latest Conceptions of the American Belle.

The real American girl is being shown in the paintings of Americans artists for the exhibitions of the 1911-12 season.

Bostonians will notice that the "American Girl" portraits shown this season are more like a real flesh and blood girl, so to speak, than has formerly been depicted on the canvases.

This is notably true in the pictures at the second art exhibition in New York of the Society of American Illustrators. After being shown for another week at the society headquarters, the exhibition will be on view in Providence and then in other cities.

"Let us thank heaven," says Henry Sumner, a member of the society and exhibitor, "that we seem to be coming back to earth in picturing our women. Instead of milk and water ideals and weird, though allegedly beautiful, monstrosities, it looks as though we were finally to get the real flesh and blood American woman—the really unsurpassable proposition."

In the coming Boston season, beginning with the exhibit of the Boston Art Club next week, visitors will be eager to notice the pictures of American girls and women, to see how Boston artists handle the subject this year.

To the present exhibition of the Society of American Illustrators many artists of prominence have contributed. The originals from which were obtained the illustrations in the books and magazines that have pleased you are there. And there is not a studio one that is not commendable—having passed the scrutiny of editors or the society's own jury.

A capitulation of the exhibitors would be the same thing as a directory of the best American illustrators.

Gibson and Keller head the list. There is an original of the late Edwin Abbey. An entire panel is given up to the work of Howard Pyle, who recently died in Rome. Pictures of Remington and Louis Loeb are also included in the section set apart to members of the society who have died.

Maxfield Parrish has some clever designs and other work. Will Foster, Harrison Fisher, the Kinneys, F. Graham Cootes, James Montgomery Flagg, F. Walter Taylor, A. B. Frost, Jessie Wilcox Smith, Violet Oakey and many others have pictures hung, and all are highly creditable.

The exhibition is in the society library by special arrangement. John W. Alexander, the painter; G. Dana Gibson and other officers and members of the society have worked hard for its success. It will remain open two weeks and possibly longer, after which the whole collection is to be sent on tour of the principal cities of the country.

GREAT BATTLE ON AT NANKING

SHANGHAI, Nov. 17.—With 15,000 imperialist soldiers surrounded by a rebel force of 50,000, the second battle of Nanking, which is expected to be decisive in the revolution, is raging to-day.

The main rebel force came up to the outskirts of Nanking to-day, attacking the Manchu outposts and driving the imperialist defenders back within the city walls or into the redoubts on Purple Hill.

Fighting was opened at Long Yan, a government outpost twenty miles from Nanking, when a rebel battery of artillery opened fire upon the imperialists and drove them from their fort with a heavy loss of life. The surviving soldiers fled towards the city.

The government soldiers are massed about the city on both sides of the Yang-Tse Kiang River and are supported with artillery.

A government force of 3,000 men, which had reached the outskirts of the city after a forced march of three days through heavy rain, encountered a force of rebels at the city gates of the city and were driven back.

Many of the soldiers in the rebel army are mutineers from the Manchu forces.

Thirteen gunboats of the squadron which went over to the rebels yesterday are lying in the river near the city with the rebel flag flying over them. It is not believed they will bombard the city.

An international police force of British, French and Russian soldiers patrolled Tientsin to-day as a result of a threatened uprising against foreigners. The natives were awed into calmness by the display of strength.

KEPT in an out-of-the-way temporary location for a whole month, by unexpected delays in the remodelling of this new store, we suffered a rather heavy loss of our usual Fall business. But we are not sitting down and mourning our loss. No! We have taken decisive steps to make it up.

$12.50 AND $15

We have marked our entire beautiful stock of Fall and Winter Suits, including Sack, Walking, Prince Albert, Dress and Tuxedo models, and all our medium and heavy-weight Overcoats, in short everything in the store, at far less than actual value, so low that you cannot resist the saving opportunity. We intend thus by sheer weight of extra value to force present buying to such an extent that we shall make up our unavoidable loss.

At every price the value is remarkable. Take $12.50 and $15—the Suits and Overcoats we offer you right now at these two popular prices are so high in fabric and workmanship, quality, so clever in cut and fit, that it will take $20 and in many cases $25 of your money to match them elsewhere.

EARLY BUYING AIDS EMPLOYES

By MARTHA WINTHROP.

Do your Christmas shopping systematically.

Do a little of it every day, if you have much to do.

Put down the name of every one that you want to remember and get their present from the assortment of goods.

You have a better assortment of goods to choose from a month or so before Christmas.

Young women who work behind the counters are giving this advice to many of their customers, and they are acting upon it. Miss Alice McNulty, one of the best known young ladies employed by a large department firm in its toy department, has been urging her special customers and all others she meets to come early for their Christmas presents.

"I know people are better satisfied with what they purchase when they have a large assortment to choose from," said Miss McNulty. "The assortments in all departments is so good now and there is no crowd that it is so much better for the average buyer to come here and purchase Christmas presents. This is not often convenient for many, but if by any means, they can get their Christmas presents early in the season, they will have a variety to choose from, that is not there when the season is far advanced.

"Then people get so impatient, if they are not waited upon quickly, a week from Christmas. Every one is worked to the highest pitch and the service is not as good, as every one is demanding the best attention. It cannot be given. The sales ladies like to show our customers every attention. We like to show them all the kinds of goods that we carry. Now this takes time and we have that time at present, but when there is a crowd surging through aisles of the store, you cannot give the individual customer what he or she needs. You are obliged to hurry and get through with your sale and often the purchaser has had to choose in a hurry, and then there is some dissatisfaction.

Pays to Shop Early.

"Often the purchaser comes back and feels that the article is not suitable. Whereas if that article were chosen, say for instance, when the store is not over crowded. It would have been pleasanter for the customer, and I can assure you, it would be agreeable for the saleswoman. We like to take some time in showing our goods. We could give our customers more attention now, and we think that in the purchasing of Christmas presents, they would be better pleased, if they would go about it more systematically, and not rush at it in a day or so.

"Why, I have seen women come into this store tired after hunting around all day for something to give one they think a great deal of, and get so exhausted that you have to pity them.

"Then just think of us. We saleswomen are always glad to give the customer the best, but we get all tired out before Christmas.

"I have often gone home after a busy day near Christmas feeling so dead tired that I could hardly eat my supper. We young women get very tired with the rush of the Christmas trade. We cannot do our best when customers are really shooting after us to serve them, and we are doing our best though we are tired.

"I think that I speak for all the young women, for I have heard them talk about it. Those who can without any inconvenience purchase their Christmas now, will not only be happier for so doing, but will make others happier who serve them.

"Three-fourths of the people can buy their presents for Christmas at least one month before the time. You take it now, all the Christmas goods are in. You have a better chance to see them. Every one is more or less fresh and not over tired, and you can see them to advantage.

Helps Shop Girls.

"I speak for thousand of girls in this city. They are willing to do what they can for every customer in giving the best for their money, and helping them to choose, but come early and do your Christmas shopping. We are urging this upon all our customers and many of them are trading on this score with us.

"One came back the other day and said to me: 'I've taken your advice and done nearly all my Christmas shopping and I feel so much better satisfied with what I have bought.'

"This is what others will see when they purchase their presents now. Come early and you will get the best results."

HASKELL'S SON ON PROBATION

George Haskell, son of Colonel William E. Haskell, formerly of Boston, was sentenced to forty-five days in the workhouse and then released on probation for a year in connection with the alleged larceny of jewelry valued at $3,000 from Mrs. Olga Haskell of Minneapolis, according to despatches to-day from that city. Mrs. Haskell is the former wife of Colonel Haskell.

Wilfred Stuart Sheldon Dickinson, said to be a member of an old English family, when arraigned in the same case, asked for a preliminary examination and will be heard to-day. His bond was placed at $5,000, but he could not obtain bail.

According to the complaint made by Mrs. Haskell, the jewelry disappeared shortly after Dickinson saw her sibling H. Dickinson, who has been a guest in the Haskell home about five weeks, declares he knows nothing about the jewelry.

"OLD FASHIONED" MOTHER SCORED

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 17.—Charles Zueblin, formerly professor of sociology in the University of Chicago, to a gathering of women in Witherspoon hall, made the old statement that the "Old fashioned mother" is not a good mother these days.

"No woman in America," he said, "can stay at home these days and be a good mother. The days when women could sit at the hearthstone and leave the direction of politics and social progress to men is ended. The quicker women realize this the better for themselves and the country.

"The old fashioned mother not only is out of place, but she is immoral. So long as immorality haunts itself on every side, ring and dance hold their grip on the social fabric and corruption is rampant in our city halls and legislative chambers, a woman cannot stay true to her womanhood and remain at home."

In speaking of Professor Zueblin's address, Mrs. James Orme, a prominent worker in the cause of woman suffrage, said she considered that Professor Zueblin had used a unfortunate expression when he said that "The old fashioned woman is not quite out of place, but immoral." She said his statement might be misconstrued by many persons into a meaning which the speaker did not wish to convey.

Mrs. Orme interpreted his remarks to mean that women of this kind were shirking their duties. She declared that she was heartily in accordance with the statements made by Professor Zueblin with the exception of that sole remark, and she agreed with him in the meaning she thought he intended.

SOCIETY TO GIVE 'GHOST' DANCE

By SYBIL WARNE.

Shades of society!

It's now the ghost party. Next Tuesday Boston's society people will get themselves in ghostly attire and float into Copley Hall, the scene of the carnival of society ghosts. It's the latest society craze.

The idea originated with one of the prettiest of the "ends" who will come out this Winter, who still retained recollections of her last Hallowe'en party. So, I won't give her name away.

You see, it happened this way. Society was getting bored and didn't. It acted for something new. It had tried about everything, so it thought, and its ideas were almost exhausted. It was while a number of the younger set were racking their brains for something new that this young miss said:

"Why, let's be ghosts. Let's have a ghost party and we'll all go decked out as ghosts. Won't that be great?"

And everybody clapped their hands and thereupon declared the idea splendid. And it was enthusiastically adopted.

So if you happen to be in the vicinity of Copley square next Tuesday and you see ghostly figures meandering behind Trinity Church, don't be alarmed. They won't hurt you. Remember, they are society ghosts and their only object is to have a good, ghostly time.

And those will not be the common, barnyard variety of ghost. Nay, a thousand times nay! These spooks will come from the most painful of graveyards, in ghostly hoopskirts and landaulets, driven by plumb, wolfeel ghostly chauffeurs.

Maybap it is your belief, too, that they will be garbed in the conventional cotton or linen sheet. If so, please rid yourself of the idea. Not these ghosts. For they are the silk sweeping variety, and their shrouds will be of the finest silks and satins.

Perhaps you'd like to be that kind of a ghost. I know I should.

The assortment of spooks on hand at Copley Hall will be large and varied. Ghosts from every clime will be there. Gowns and sprites and wraiths and banshees and fairies and elfins and goblins—large and small, tall and short, thin and stout, will float about in the dim, green light. But they will all be of the aristocratic species.

Nowhere society has put on the throne of necessity into trend new sensation, I suppose it will become the rage everywhere. And we shall soon see. I venture to predict, plain, every-day ghosts whose fathers came over on other vessels than the Mayflower, and whose ghostly abodes will not be peopled with green-backs.

It is safe to say, however, that Newport society will not be in any too great haste to adopt this new ghostly wrinkle. Imagine Newport society folk taking up anything from the grave. No, sirree, no dead ones for Newport!

No, the ghost dance will not, I fancy, prove as big a fad in Newport as the looking-backwards dance, the champagne shampoo, the monkey dinner, the dog party or any of the other sensational "stunts" that have lured this centre of fashion and amused the rest of the country.

The "ghost party" will be held under the auspices of the Copley Society. There will be "ghostly features" galore. There will be a Jack-o'-lantern quadrille. There will be all kinds of "stunts" by Harvard boys. There will be a musical pantomime. Virginia Tanner will give a dance. There will be a number of grotesque dances under the supervision of Elizabeth Porter.

Society "Ghosts" to Revel in Copley Hall

Mrs. Samuel J. Mixter and Miss Elizabeth Parker, who are on the "Ghost dance" committee and have planned the latest society sensation for next Tuesday night. The "ghosts" will be real, nice ones and won't scare even the most timid folk.

FLETCHER LEAD NOW CUT TO 96

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 17.—The incomplete official count of ballots cast for Mayor, has cut the lead of Mayor Henry Fletcher from 284 to 96. The 4th District Ward, showed a glaring error, the official count taking away 162 votes from Fletcher and showing a gain for Gainer. One increase for Gainer was 87 votes.

5,000 Men's High-Grade OVERCOATS Made to Sell for $12, $15, $18, $20, $22.50, $25, $27.50, $30 and $35.
A Purchase Entirely Out of the Ordinary

Several of the leading manufacturers of the country have made price concessions to us of 25, 40 and even 50 per cent. in order to move their stocks quickly, which were too high owing to the tardiness of cold weather.

Overcoats $8.75

Many men think $8.75 too little to pay for an overcoat. To them we emphatically say that it depends altogether on whether it is an $8.75 coat or a higher priced coat reduced to $8.75. For the man who cannot be convinced we have other coats today at $11.75, $14.50, $18 and $25. To the man who will listen to argument, we say this: Third Floor

It is a well known fact that a good, warm, wearable overcoat can be had for $12 or $15. By this we mean good, reliable materials and good, dependable workmanship. In short, a coat that we guarantee for service—not a coat made up merely to make a low price. We stand back of every coat at this price.

We'll hand back your money or give you a new coat, just as quickly for one of these coats as we would for the highest priced coat in our stock if it does not wear to suit you.

These are real $12 and $15 coats priced low because the season is backward. That's the whole story, and the truest story ever told about overcoats.

Description: $12.00 and $15.00 overcoats—$8.75—blacks, browns and grays, in plain, 46-inch lengths, velvet or cloth collars or the long, 50-inch, convertible style coats, serge lined, in all sizes, from 33 to 44. The materials are kerseys, Scotches and cheviots. $8.75.

PACKERS MAY BE PUT IN JAIL

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Judge Kohlsaat ordered that all arguments on the motion to quash writs of habeas corpus sued out by the nine millionaire packers must be completed by to-night. This declaration, coming at the opening of court, was generally taken to mean that the judge would quash the writs and order the packers to trial before Judge Carpenter on Monday.

The nine indicted packers have to stay in jail pending the decision of an appeal to the Supreme Court in case the writ of habeas corpus is quashed, according to the startling admission made by Levy Mayer in the close of his argument to-day. Attorneys for the government say that the court may admit the defendants to bail in case they appeal, but also declare that the law makes no provision for liberty on bail under such conditions.

CROKER AND DECIES AMONG ARRIVALS

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—On board the Mauretania, which arrived to-day, were Richard Croker, Lord and Lady Decies, Mrs. William B. Leeds, Charles M. Schwab, Frederick Townsend Martin and Mrs. James Henry Smith, whose daughter married the Portuguese pretender.

CATARRH OF THE STOMACH

COSTS NOTHING TO TRY.

Catarrh of the stomach has long been considered the next thing to incurable. The usual symptoms are a full or bloating sensation after eating, accompanied sometimes with sour or watery risings, a formation of gases, causing pressure on the heart and lungs and difficult breathing, headaches, fickle appetite, nervousness and a general played-out, languid feeling.

There is often a foul taste in the mouth, coated tongue, and if the interior of the stomach could be seen it would show a slimy, inflamed condition.

The cure of this common and obstinate trouble is found in a treatment which causes the food to be readily, thoroughly digested before it has time to ferment and irritate the delicate mucous surfaces of the stomach. To secure a prompt and healthy digestion is the one necessary thing to do, and when normal digestion is secured the catarrhal condition will have disappeared.

According to Dr. Harlanson, the safest and best treatment is to use after each meal a tablet, composed of Diastase, Aseptic Pepsin, a little Nux, Golden Seal and fruit acids. These tablets can now be found at all drug stores under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and, not being a patent medicine, can be used with perfect safety and assurance that healthy appetite and thorough digestion will follow their regular use after meals.

The plan of dieting is simply another name for starvation, and the use of prepared foods and new-fangled breakfast foods simply makes matters worse, or any dyspeptic who has tried them knows.

As Dr. Bennett says, the only reason I can imagine why Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are not universally used by everybody who is troubled in any way with poor digestion, is because many people seem to think that because a medicine is advertised or is sold in drug stores or is proceeded by a trade-mark it must be a humbug, whereas, as a matter of truth, any druggist who is observant knows that Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have cured more people of catarrh of the stomach, indigestion, heartburn, heart trouble, nervous prostration and run-down condition generally, than all the patent medicines and doctors' prescriptions for stomach trouble combined.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the safest preparation as well as the simplest and most convenient remedy for any form of indigestion, catarrh of the stomach, biliousness, sour stomach, heartburn and bloating after meals.

For sale by all druggists at 50c a box.

Send your name and address today for a free trial package and see for yourself. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

11TH CHILD, BORN AT 11:11, WEIGHS 11 POUNDS, 11 OUNCES

LEWISTON, Me., Nov. 17.—Nothing but elevens so far in the natal history of the infant son of Joseph Roy of this city, who was born on November 11. He is the eleventh child in the family, was born at 11 minutes past 11 on the eleventh day of the month of the year 1911, and weighed just eleven pounds and eleven ounces.

BEAUTY "TIPS" BY MR. BAILEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Henry Turner Bailey brought to last night's session of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hotel Astor an art uplift message from Boston. His special message had to do with the ordinary citizen's personal relation to municipal beauty, and he said that it was every one's duty to make his appearance contribute as far as possible to the general pulchritude.

"Every woman can study herself," he said, "and determine what styles and colors are best suited to her size, shape and complexion. Remember, ladies, that the elephant is not colored like the butterfly, and if you weigh 300 pounds don't dress like a little girl of three years."

The delegates giggled.

"As I look over this audience," he said, "I notice that you New York State women are not wearing so many diamonds that your eyes are dimmed. Unless a woman's eyes are more dazzling than her jewels she should remove some of the jewels. Whenever any portion of your costume, ladies, sticks out like a sore thumb you are overdressed. When I see a woman coming toward me and exclaim instinctively, 'Where in conscience did she get that hat?' it means she should get another piece of headgear. To be brief, you should be more conspicuous than your clothes."

The same principle, he explained, applied to houses and their furnishings. A man's surroundings to be truly artistic should be harmoniously subordinate to his personality.

"Many of our American homes," he continued, "resemble unclassified museums, and the more money we have the more barbaric do we make them. One of the greatest services each one of us can do our own municipal art is to use what ever influence we have to push the development of American architecture.

"Why should the city of Racine, Wis., have a pantheon in the form of a Gothic chapel as it has this night? Why should New York city have a stock exchange modelled on the lines of a Greek temple, and railroad stations built on the plan of the cloisters of the Middle Ages?"

Mr. Bailey discussed the relation of building material to architecture, and said that the skyscrapers of lower Manhattan made New York harbor the most beautiful sight in the world viewed from the deck of an approaching steamer.

WARD M'ALLISTER'S BROTHER, SAYS TRAMP

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 17.—A man begged food at a house in Appleton, Wis. The woman of the house had him arrested. "I am a brother of the late Ward McAllister," said the man to the police magistrate. "He was the leader of society in New York." Hearing this, the woman who had caused his arrest said: "Oh, let him go, judge; you can't be looks refined; he is no ordinary hobo." "I don't care wh ehe is," retorted the judge, "nor who his brother was. I'm dealing with him, and I sentence him to ten days' imprisonment for vagrancy." Society people in Appleton became much agitated when they heard that a McAllister had been locked up. Such pressure is being brought to bear on the Appleton magistrate that he has promised to release the shrewd tramp. The late Ward McAllister had one brother, a distinguished lawyer of San Francisco, whose practice brought him $100,000 a year.

5 M'NAMARA JURORS SEATED

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 17.—Five permanent jurors of the twelve that will hear the case of James B. McNamara, charged with murder by dynamiting the Los Angeles Times Building have been selected. William J. Andrew, a carpenter, and J. B. Sexton, a rancher and real estate dealer, were added today when preemptory challenges were exercised for the second time since the trial started. The five permanent jurors are: Robert E. Bain, F. D. Green, Byron Lisk, J. B. Sexton and William J. Ahlo.

MATTAPAN PLEADS FOR THROUGH CARS

The Mattapan Civic Improvement Association to-day filed a petition with the Railroad Commission for a resumption of through day car service on the Columbia street railway between Mattapan square and points in the city proper. The petitioners claim that during many hours of the day it is not possible to go from Mattapan square to intown points without changing cars. The commission will give a hearing soon.

N. SALLINGER SAYS

(Proprietor of the Peoples Credit Co., 501 Washington Street

Originator of the Famous "Order Check" System of Purchasing on Credit at the Department and Other Stores)

"NO MAN NEED PAY A WHOLE WEEK'S SALARY AT ONE TIME FOR A SUIT OR OVERCOAT"

TO-DAY there is absolutely no necessity for it. In the past if a man needed a suit of clothes he either paid a full week's salary for it, or, if he were unable to part with that much money at one time, he was at the mercy of old style credit methods—which meant a high price for inferior values—for the accommodation of credit he had to take clothing of no reputation, carrying a cheap credit house label, and pay a big profit.

No man need pay a full week's salary at one time for a suit or overcoat. I will sell him on credit, at cash prices, any of the leading brands of high grade clothing—clothing with a reputation—that is being advertised nationally and locally.

I have men customers who get salaries all the way from $12 to $50 a week. A fraction of the weekly salary enables them to open up a credit account at the Peoples Credit Co.

(Signed) N. SALLINGER.

RULING BEARS ON RICHESON CASE

Through the ruling of Judge Crosby, favoring the admission of the statement of a deceased person at the trial of Bertram G. Spencer in the Superior Criminal Court at Springfield, a precedent has been established which may decide one of the most important questions in the trial of the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, charged with the murder of Avis Linnell.

Attorneys throughout New England are to-day debating how much bearing Judge Crosby's decision will have at the trial of Pastor Richeson, as one of the most intricate questions that has ever arisen in the case of a man charged with a capital crime is involved.

One of the witnesses in the Richeson case, around whose testimony the prosecution has built much of its case, is a young woman who declares Avis Linnell told her on the afternoon of the day she died she had been walking in the Fenway with Pastor Richeson at the time when the minister is alleged to have given Avis a "headache" powder.

First Decision of Kind.

This girl was an intimate friend of Avis's and is regarded as an important government witness. When the girl told her story to the police the question was raised as to the admissibility of her testimony as evidence at the trial of the minister.

The statute covering the admissibility of the statements of a deceased person makes no distinction between a criminal and a civil proceeding, although it has always been generally understood to pertain only to civil cases.

Until Judge Crosby rendered his decision in the Spencer case this question, as far as it is known, had never been decided before in the United States. It is a remarkable coincidence that the question has arisen twice, almost at the same time, and in each instance a New England murder case.

District Attorney Pelletier to-day expressed his pleasure at Judge Crosby's decision. It has given him the opening for which he has been searching ever since the police unearthed the young woman who conversed with Avis Linnell when the latter returned from her walk to the Boston Young Women's Christian Association building on War eaton street on Saturday, October 14, the day she died.

Lee Returns Soon.

District Attorney Pelletier was satisfied the testimony of this girl was the only piece of evidence the prosecution could hope to obtain before the trial of Pastor Richeson, which placed the minister in the girl's company on the day of her death. The District Attorney has had the law examined and with the decision of Judge Crosby is convinced there is nothing in the statutes to prohibit his offering the witness's testimony.

Attorney John R. Lee of Lynchburg, Va., retained for the defence of Pastor Richeson, is expected to return to Boston the first of December and resume his fight to save the minister's life. Attorney Lee is confident Pastor Richeson is innocent.

GAELIC ALLIANCE PLANS FOR FEIS

The Gaelic Alliance of Boston is preparing for the Irish Feis, to be held in Paul Revere and Talbot halls on November 28. It will be a reproduction of the real Irish Feiseanna, which are held in the principal cities and towns of Ireland. Donal O'Connor and Flonan McCollum, the Gaelic leaders, who are now in this country, will have charge of this unique affair.

DREAMS TOLD OF DEATH OF GIRL

Frances C. Young, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Young of No. 1234 Washington street, South End, who was killed by an electric car within sight of her own home, was to have attended the Lincoln House gymnasium tonight for the first time in her life. She was on an errand to obtain some material for her first suit when she was knocked down and killed.

Instead of sending their daughter, who was known as "Sweetheart" to the gymnasium to-night, her parents are planning for her funeral. Four of her little playmates will be pallbearers.

Frances was an only child. Both her mother and father had a premonition of death. Last week Mrs. Young dreamed that a white dove had entered their home. Mr. Young, a few nights before, had dreamed that a white rose appeared on his shoulder. Their dreams had a strange impression upon them.

Killed Returning Home.

Running out of the house to buy some elastic for her gym suit, Frances hurried to a store, almost opposite the house. The errand should have taken but a few minutes and neither the child nor any friend of her mother became anxious. Looking out of the window of her home Mrs. Gilbert saw a large crowd gathered on the street. "Something serious must have happened. There was trouble," said Mrs. Young. "I rushed down the stairs. The crowd was gathered about the car. I asked a policeman what was the matter. He told me that a little girl was hurt.

"Little did I dream that it was my own child, and—ough the car, said Mrs. Young. I told the police officer that I had sent my little 'Sweetheart' on an errand. I told him that she was buying some elastic."

Officer Had Elastic.

"Elastic" said the officer. 'Are you sure?' he exclaimed.

"Why yes," I said, 'I sent her not fifteen minutes ago.'

"Is this the elastic,' asked the policeman, extending a small parcel to me. It was the same string of elastic that 'Sweetheart' had gone to purchase.

"All this time they were waiting for the Elevated train to arrive. My child was under the car.

"The wrecking crew lifted the body of the child from under the heavy trucks and placed her little body in the patrol wagon."

E. W. Hall, motorman of the car that killed the child, was taken to the East Boston Street Police Station and charged with manslaughter. He was later bailed by the company. Chief Inspector Dugan is making an inquiry.

$25,000 VERDICT AGAINST STUART

A verdict of $25,027.58 was found to-day by a Suffolk County jury against William H. Stuart, former British Vice-consul at Boston, now confined in a private home asylum.

His wife, Mrs. Susan M. Stuart, daughter of the late Aniek Wentworth, who also was a defendant, won her case. The jury found that the signature of Mrs. Stuart to the promissory note involved was a forgery.

Mrs. Nourry contested her father's will, which cut her off with an annual income, and finally secured $3,000,000 in settlement.

The case has been on trial all week. Robert M. Morse and Marcus Morton were counsel for the Stuarts.

ELKS PLAN BIG CHARITY BALL

Members of Boston Lodge, No. 10, Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, expect that their charity ball in Symphony Hall on Thanksgiving evening, will be a greater success than ever. Never before has such interest been manifested by the 1,700 members of the lodge. The reserves of the ball are devoted to any charitable purpose which any member of the lodge may recommend.

At Christmas many families are supplied with a good dinner by the order. The families of deceased Elks, who are not in the best of financial circumstances, also benefit from this fund. It is said by the committee in charge that the 1911 ball is in shape all others, and they are doing their utmost for the success of the affair. If you should go up to the Elks' house on Somerset street you will find all the little days busily engaged in sweeping the frowning Gloom from the thresholds.

At the ball tickets of all the New England lodges of Elks have been selling in abroad, and a great many representatives from all the lodges in existence, Grand Exalted Ruler Fenton, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, Allan T. Treadway, president of the Senate; Joseph McCord, Speaker of the House of Representatives; Mayor Fitzgerald and many other State and city dignitaries have accepted invitations.

The future of this fall's ball each year has been the eleven o'clock sentiment of the order. The committee promises that the feature this year will surpass anything ever attempted. Those who attend and do not participate in the dancing will be amply repaid by waiting to see this magnificent spectacle.

HOLD UP HYDE PARK LICENSES

To offset an influx of applications for liquor licenses in Hyde Park, which is now known as "Ward 26," the Boston Licensing Board held a meeting to-day and decided not to issue permits to any person or persons until further notice.

The board expects that a number of Boston liquor dealers and others will take advantage of Hyde Park as a good location to ply their business.

The cases will be officially accepted as part of Boston the 1st of January, and it is the intention of the Licensing Board to act on whatever application for licenses which may then be petitioned for. If any are granted they will be for only five months.

The board grants all liquor licenses for the city during the month of May.

COUNSEL HAVE A CLASH IN THE PALMER TRIAL

that the vote was not on a true bill, but as indictment had been brought."

"It was then brought out that the object of the long secret conference at the bench at the close of yesterday's session had been an attempt to come to some agreement on facts in the case. After some further argument Judge McLaughlin allowed Foreman Sweetman to correct the statement of Attorney Whipple and gave the exact procedure of the Grand Jury room in a case. The witness said:

"The District Attorney would say: 'This is the case of the Commonwealth vs. John Doe,' and there would be no announcement of how the case came here, whether on appeal or not. Then we would hear the evidence of the case and the first witness would be called and sworn in charge of the case. The District Attorney would call the witnesses and question them. After the witnesses had retired, I would say, 'All those in favor of returning a bill will raise their right hands.' This was done, I would count them. Then I would say, 'All those opposed,' and I would count them. If the vote was affirmative, I would say, 'Bill, if no affirmative, I would say, 'No bill.' I would then lay the papers of the case upon the table and take up the next case."

Long Session Expected.

Attorney Whipple excused the witness after this statement. District Attorney Higgins took up his redirect examination of the witness at 10:17 o'clock.

District Attorney Higgins announced before court came in that he had received a telephone message from Chief Justice Aiken that another judge would be assigned to assist in the criminal cases now in the Middlesex Superior Court next week. It is the regular session of the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge, but all of the court's time has so far been taken up with the Palmer case. It is expected that the case will last fully a week more, and possibly two weeks.

"Were you present at any session at which action was taken affecting Jackson Palmer?" asked District Attorney Higgins.

Question waived.

Q.—On July 18 did the Middlesex County Grand Jury take a vote? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—There was a vote? Mr. Whipple again objected.

"All I propose to show," said District Attorney Higgins, addressing the court, "is that a vote was taken by more than twelve members of the Middlesex County Grand Jury. That is all that the defendants in this case have a right to show."

Mr. Whipple—Nobody has offered any evidence in this case to show when or how any grand juror has voted. What we have shown is absolute evidence that no vote to indict was taken. The District Attorney has shown that a vote was taken to show him to draw up an indictment against certain persons on whatever charge he pleased. There was no vote for a specific indictment. The law says that there shall be a vote. The Grand Jurors on the admission of the foreman did not take this action. They left it for the District Attorney to draw the indictments. We have heard from the previous witness what the form of procedure was in indicting the other persons and that procedure was not followed in this case. We see the other side also offering evidence to show that there was no dissenting vote or voice, thereby substituting the suggestion that by failure to do so they offered no protest. The law says that the Grand Jury shall indict or shall not indict.

Judge McLaughlin—What law?

"Immemorial Custom."

Mr. Whipple—Why, it has been the immemorial custom. I can produce authorities.

Resuming his examination of Travis, District Attorney Higgins asked:

Q.—Were there more than twelve members of the Grand Jury present at that vote?

Cross-examination by Attorney Whipple.

Q.—There were the following members present: A.—Here in this room.

Q.—And they were the foreman's testimony as to the vote? A.—I have.

Q.—And you heard the foreman's testimony as to the vote? A.—I have.

Q.—Did you make any mistake or error in the foreman's testimony as to who made the motion and when and how the vote was put? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Wasn't it voted in this form that the District Attorney be instructed to draw up an indictment against Jackson Palmer and the others. A.—Yes, that was the form.

Dr. Henry B. Perkins of West Newton, father-in-law of Jackson Palmer, testified. He was examined by District Attorney Higgins.

Q.—Were you present at the trial of Jackson Palmer? A.—Most of it.

"Larry" Smith in the Case.

J.—How long after the trial did you know that no indictment had been drawn against Jackson Palmer? A.—The last day of the trial.

J.—Did Jackson Palmer tell you the fact that no indictment had been brought against him? A.—I can't say.

Q.—What was the next thing you did? A.—I went to see "Larry" Smith.

Q.—And what was the next thing then? A.—I went to see Mr. Drummey.

Q.—Who gave you his name? A.—"Larry" Smith.

Q.—Did you see Mr. Drummey? A.—Yes. At Pepperell, at his home.

Q.—How many times did you see him? A.—Six or eight times.

Q.—Did you not meet him at the City Club? A.—Yes, I did. I also met him at my home two weeks ago.

Q.—Did you furnish the dinner at the City Club? A.—Yes.

Q.—Are you a member of that club? A.—No.

Q.—Were you there as the guest of some member? A.—Yes.

Q.—What member? A.—Mr. Johnson.

Q.—What Mr. Johnson? A.—Mr. Melvin M. Johnson.

Q.—How much have you spent thus far in your investigation? A.—I cannot say, as I have not got all my bills in yet.

Q.—Give us an estimate. A.—I should say in the neighborhood of $500.

Cross-examined by Mr. Whipple.

Q.—When did Mr. Palmer marry your daughter? A.—In 1905.

Worked Night and Day.

Q.—This matter gave you a great deal of concern, did it not? A.—Yes, it did. My daughter was not in very good health.

Q.—You have worked yourself on the matter? A.—Yes, I have neglected my business since the first of October.

Q.—What have you done yourself? A.—I have acted as chauffeur, furnished Mr. Smith with the necessary backing and support that he needed to get the facts in the matter. I have driven right and day in my automobile, calling upon people.

"I contend," said Mr. Higgins, "that the witness should have gone before the trial Justice rather than go behind his back to another judge."

This brought Attorney Whipple to his feet, and he exclaimed:

"This remark by the District Attorney to the effect that anyone not believing anyone's back is distinctly improper, and I beg that it be withdrawn."

"I do not consider it material," interjected Judge McLaughlin, adding:

"I stand by it," declared Higgins.

"It will not be considered by me in any way," said Judge McLaughlin.

Mr. Smith on Stand.

Lawrence P. Smith was then called.

Q.—What is your business? A.—For ten years I have been a private investigator for lawyers.

Q.—Ever called a detective? A.—By some of my enemies, yes (laughter).

Q.—How long have you known Jackson Palmer? A.—Ever since he was a lad of twelve or fourteen years old.

Q.—Ever since he was Mayor of Lowell? Q.—When were you brought into this case? A.—I was sent for by Melvin M. Johnson.

Q.—Have you any place in Boston at present where you are accustomed to do business? A.—My house and my telephone.

Q.—Do you do business in other places —the office of Grenville MacFarland? A.—No.

Q.—You've been there more or less? A.—Yes.

Q.—Investigated for him, haven't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Worked on the Glover case, didn't you? A.—Not more than two nights.

Q.—You did some investigating on the Glover case? A.—Yes, sir. (With emphasis on the sir.)

Q.—Any other business headquarters? A.—There are other places where I run in to see people.

Q.—Tell us where they are? A.—Well,

SILK HAT NOW BACK IN BOSTON

Silk hats and frock coats for Sunday afternoon promenades and class and exhibitioning are coming back. They were never ruled out on good authority, but they had been pretty generally assigned to the realm of special functions.

Hat store managers say the silk hat business is coming along now fourthing like the old times. They make no secret of their rather poor opinion of the men who discarded this kingly headpiece for a derby, and the majestic frock coat for a frumpsy sack coat as a matter of choice and not necessity.

The store has four distinctive styles of silk hats for this season. One is almost a Qwa, a cockling, the crown bell bus a slight curl. The other is wide and straight as a moving, narrow that it has scarcely any brim at all. The third is a modification of the second, and the fourth is a more sensible, a little bit bell-ish, in fact, an ordinary calm, curved in standard style.

It isn't the latter which causes the style, these salesmen say. It's the men. He gets the notion all at once and about 100,000 of his fellows get it at the same time without an exchange of thought. So the hat clerks say, anyway.

The same man, one of the 100,000 who knows what's what, dropped the Panama in midseason when the crush was on several years ago, and distinguished himself from the madding crowd by ending the summer in a three-dollar straw. Likewise he didn't like the people who were wearing the ten-dollar and twenty-dollar Panamas, and maybe he didn't like the crest that fell to wearing fourth coats and silk hats for holidays, and so evolved the individual derby and business suit. Now, they say, he's coming back to his best traditions.

FOUR VESSELS CALL FOR HELP

Rescued by the Manomet Life Saving Station ten miles off the Plymouth shore, unconscious and in a pitiable condition from hours of exposure to the cold and wind, Frank A. Raymond, Alexander Stevenson and Albert Thomas of Plymouth are at their homes to-day recovering from their thrilling experience.

Four vessels in all flew distress signals during the night.

The escape of the three men from a watery grave was a narrow one. Yesterday morning they left Plymouth in the power boat Magnolia to go fishing. Two or three miles from shore something went wrong with the propeller. They attempted to anchor and repair it, but the anchor failed to hold.

Blowing farther and further out to sea by the strong offshore wind and the heavy sea, their situation became desperate. Without other means of attracting the attention of the lifesaving crew at Manomet station, Raymond took off his trousers and hung them up on a pole.

The lookout at the life saving station several hours later noticed the signal. The men were then ten miles off shore. Immediately they manned the lifeboat and headed out to sea. Owing to the gale that was blowing and the high seas they reached the disabled craft only with the greatest difficulty.

When they reached the Magnolia they found the three men huddled together in the bottom of the boat unconscious.

Three other vessels flew distress signals off Chatham to-day, all being badly battered by the heavy seas. One was bound to off Great Point Rip with two men on the rigging another was ten miles off shore driving before the heavy gale, while the revenue cutter Acushnet rescued the third and took it in tow.

The revenue cutter Gresham in Boston was asked to render aid.

TWINS OF 84 DEAD BY GAS

NEW BRITAIN, Ct., Nov. 17.—Word has been received here that Mrs. Ada L. Bassford and Miss Eva Enos aged eighty-four years, known as the "Heavenly Twins," were found dead in Brooklyn. Gas was turned on.

INDIGESTION, DYSPEPSIA, SOURNESS, GAS AND STOMACH-HEADACHE GO

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch Gas and Eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of Dizziness, Heartburn, Fullness, Nausea, Bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach, and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases, then you will understand why Dyspepsia trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin and Indigestion, is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but, what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for Biliousness or Constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for Indigestion or Gastritis or any other Stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of Stomach Trouble and Indigestion.

$10,000,000 GERMAN QUAKE

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Dispatches received to-day from the zone of last night's earthquake, which was felt in all sections of Germany, save the extreme north and west, indicated that while the damage exceeds $10,000,000, there has probably been no loss of life.

Emperor William's palace at Hechingen, in the province of Hohenzollern, was badly damaged. Fissures were rent in the walls and tower, and the soldiers of the garrison fled in a panic, fearing that the huge building would fall. Sharp shocks were felt in Prussia, Bavaria, Wurtemburg, the grand duchies of Hesse and Baden and the province of Hesse-Nassau.

Public buildings were wrecked, private structures and walls cracked and hundreds of thousands of persons were thrown into a panic. The severest tremors were felt shortly before midnight, after many had retired.

The heaviest shocks were felt at Stuttgart in Wurtemburg and Frankfort-on-the-Main in the province of Hesse-Nassau. In the latter city thousands fled to the street in their night clothing and several buildings were moved from their foundations. Great flames appeared in the walls of others.

At Stuttgart furniture was overturned and chimneys toppled over. A railway viaduct near Lauffingen caved in and a serious wreck was narrowly averted. At Constance many buildings were badly damaged, including the postoffice.

There was a theatre panic in Heidelberg and damage was done to State buildings. The damage at Munich and Mayence and their suburbs was heavy.

MANY HOMELESS BY FIRE ON ZERO DAY

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 17.—West Winfield, a dozen miles south of Utica, was partly wiped out by flames to-day. Several business structures and residences were destroyed, and there were narrow escapes from death. Suffering from the zero weather was intense among those whose homes were burned. The loss is $60,000.

Why Wet Shampoos Are Injurious to Hair

(Guide to Beauty)

"Avoid wet shampoos, if you would have soft, lustrous hair and plenty of it. More or less 'free' alkali in shampoo mixtures robs the scalp of its necessary oil, and this, in a measure, causes hair to grow dull, brittle and unmanageable.

"The dry shampoo is rapidly gaining favor because of its cleansing and invigorating effect on both hair and scalp. If 4 ounces either of orris root cornmeal and 4 ounces of therox are mixed together and a tablespoonful sprinkled over the scalp, then brushed well through and out of the hair, all traces of dust and dandruff will be removed, and the hair will take on a silken sheen and richness of color impossible by any other method."

YOUNG HARVARD WINS GLEE CLUB

Lionel de Jersey Harvard, lineal descendant of the original John, who assisted in founding Harvard university, has been drafted for the Glee Club. When the young man stepped off the steamship last September he avowed that he would probably take no part in varsity contests. He did not realize then the value placed on a good voice at the university. He will sing on Friday night at the annual dual concert of the Green and Crimson clubs at Jordan Hall.

This means that he will accompany the club on its Western trip during Christmas week.

TWO HELD FOR TICKET THEFT

Arthur F. Chase, twenty-seven, a brakeman in the employ of the Narrow Gauge road, and Franklin Pickering, thirty, a former brakeman of the road, both living at No. 115 School street, Lynn, were each held in $500 by Judge Lummus in Lynn court to-day after they had pleaded not guilty to a complaint charging them with stealing 5,000 passenger tickets, valued at $250 from the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn Railroad Company. The men were arrested by Inspectors Murray and Burkes of the Lynn police. It is alleged that Chase collected the tickets and sold them to Pickering at two and one-half cents apiece, while Pickering sold them to patrons of the road for three cents apiece.

THIS PROPOSITION WAS NEVER MADE BY ANY OTHER CLOTHING MAN IN GREATER BOSTON —POSNER

I AM going to settle this Suit and Overcoat question—right now—once and for all time. Every day, I see some old stunt put over in the form of advertising that actually makes me smile. They try to sell goods in the old-style way and if nobody introduces new and better methods the old ones have to go.

Well! here goes for a new one—the first time it was ever put into an advertisement.

I will sell any man who comes into my store, any time this season, a suit of clothes or overcoat with the express contract that he can wear the clothes three months—six months—or a whole year—and if during that time he feels that they have not given absolute satisfaction he can return the clothes to my store and get a new suit or overcoat on demand.

I know what I'm talking about when I say that The Stein-Bloch Co. make the best tailored clothes for men in the world. It isn't guess work. It isn't advertising dope. It is the plain, unvarnished truth.

All this talk about exclusive styles and special bargains and all the rest of the appeal that is being put out by average clothiers is simply catch phraseology.

It doesn't mean anything, any more, because everybody uses the same stuff—most of them using what some other firm used on a previous day—in pictures—in wording—in arrangement.

Half the Boston advertising (?) is clipped from the original advertising of Chicago and New York clothing houses—in most cases firms selling an entirely different brand of clothes from the brand sold by the firm that copies the advertising.

I never did business outside of Boston. I have made my reputation in Boston—doing business in the square old New England way, with intelligent Bostonians.

I propose to go ahead on the lines I have established—and am operating my big new clothing department on that basis.

I would like to sell you a Suit or an Overcoat this season. So I make this proposition:

Buy a Suit or Overcoat from my stock—anytime you feel like it—and if you can find a Suit or Overcoat that pleases you better in any store in this city all you need do is return the clothes to the head salesman in the Posner clothing department and get your money. This is the Posner idea of meeting competition—not with conversation, but with the goods themselves.

Posner's prices for Stein-Bloch suits or overcoats are $18, $20, $22.50, $25, and up to $55—which prices I want you to compare with the absurd figures put into the advertising of many other clothiers.

This store is ready and willing to do business with everybody—anytime the doors are open—but your money doesn't stay in the cash drawer unless you find—on thorough examination—that the goods you bought and paid for are satisfactory in every way.

What I want you to feel—so that there will never be any doubt in your mind—is this:

Other stores may give a square deal according to their ideas of that much abused term—but the high water mark in Boston for "the squarest deal in the city" still stands at

COAT COLLAR WHITE WITH DANDRUFF

Scalp Badly Affected. Itched Terribly. Hair Fell Out. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Now Has Thick Growth of Hair and Is Never Troubled with Any Dandruff or Itching of Scalp.

"I am more than gratified by the successful results I obtained by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. For several years my scalp was very badly affected with dandruff and scales. My scalp itched terribly at times and my hair fell out. My coat collar would be actually white with the dandruff that had fallen from my head. My profession being that of a barber I was particular about having my hair in good condition, and was also in the habit of using many lotions etc., for the scalp. These had at one time effect. I had read of the Cuticura Remedies that I resolved to try them. I shampooed with Cuticura Soap twice a week and after drying my head thoroughly, I anointed parts of my scalp with Cuticura Ointment. I was pleased from the outset, and continued using this treatment, as long as I found any signs of dandruff or itching. Soon I could see that the dandruff was leaving my head, and in a few months I was entirely rid of it. I have now a thick growth of hair and I am never troubled with dandruff or itching of the scalp. There is no question but that the Cuticura Remedies cured me. I feel very thankful to them for my cure, and gladly recommend them to my customers and friends." (Signed) John F. Wilson, 307 Northampton Street, Dorchester, Boston, Mass., July 15, 1910.

Desperate Desmond

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

Bound fast to the anchor of the Italian battleship, Desperate Desmond yet plots to take Rosamond away from Claude. But Claude is not disturbed. He knows that when the anchor plunges to the bottom of the Mediterranean Desmond's villainous career will be at an end forever.

Splash! goes the anchor. And with it goes Desmond to his well-deserved doom. But the attention of all is directed toward a cruel Turk who has apparently bundled one of his wives up in a sack and thrown her into the water. There is no Court of Domestic Relations in the Ottoman Empire.

Another Turkish trick! As the brave Italian diver sinks in the deep to rescue the Turkish woman he thinks is tied in the sack, he is confronted by a Turk who adopted the ruse to save Desmond. The individual is indeed perdidons. The international crook has many and resourceful accomplices.

Quickly Desmond dons the diving suit of the Italian sailor, knowing that the officers will never be able to penetrate his disguise. He plans to take the Turkish desperado up with him in the sack, hoping that they can capture Claude and Rosamond. No half-way measures go with Desmond.

Sure enough, Claude and Rosamond are completely taken in by the disguises of the two scoundrels. Claude tenderly picks up the sack which he thinks holds a half drowned woman and starts for the ship's hospital. Rosamond praises the bravery of Desmond, whom she thinks is an Italian diver.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "and I can prove it." He jumps overboard with Rosamond, while his Turkish accomplice seizes Claude. At once strake the villain has succeeded in capturing both of the lovers. Watch what happens to-morrow, and observe how—

How to Be Beautiful

By MARGARET HUBBARD AYER

EDWARD HOWARD GRIGGS says: "The gymnastic that makes you hold your head up tends to straighten your moral behavior," and these gymnastics should have their place in every beauty seeker's daily schedule, not because of the moral effect, but for various other cosmetic reasons. In the first place you have to hold up your head consciously nowadays, because the high head attitude has gone out of fashion.

Strange, isn't it, that there should be fashions in carriage, but there are, just as distinct, too, as fashions in hats and shoes, and the first often depends upon the last—we hold our heads to suit our clothes, not our inclinations.

Just now it's fashionable to look demure. Frocks and hats especially demand an affectation of modesty, and the small hats which are the rage are most effectively worn by the girl who keeps her head down and then glances up through her tangled hair, which is drawn up from under the hat brim for that especial purpose. Shoulders, too, should droop, and diaphragms and hips are de trop if the new frocks are to be worn to the best advantage. All of which is pleasing to the eye and quite against the rules of good health.

Holding the head down continuously tends to shorten the muscles of the neck, develop a double chin and induces the premature appearance of that small lump of flesh at the back of the neck which detracts from the elegance of the back and makes the figure look old.

Where these defects have appeared, they can be remedied by neck and head exercises and by consciously and constantly holding the head very high at all times. One of the best exercises to lengthen the neck muscles which have contracted from lack of use, or because they are overburdened with a layer of fatty tissue, consists in pulling up the head muscles very far, just as you would do if your collar were very high and tight and you were trying to rise above it or find a more comfortable position. Pull especially at the sides of the neck.

We exercise our neck muscles very little, principally because of high collars and heavy hats. You will observe, if you give the matter any attention, that neither men nor women can turn their heads with ease. High starched collars are not as bad as our boned ones, but they are none too comfortable, and the woman encased in the fashionable collar and weighted down with a modern creation in the millinery line won't more her head unless she has to.

Paris dressmakers are trying to kill the Dutch neck and low collar which was fashionable last Summer, but I hope they will not be successful in introducing the vheelike collars of lace lined with net which I saw there in September.

If you want to have a pretty neck, never wear very tight collars. Don't stop your circulation in order to look smart. The beauty of the face depends upon the freedom of the neck muscles and the unobstructed circulation of the blood flowing through the big veins in the neck which goes to feed the brain and incidentally the tissues of the face as well. The destruction of the neck muscles is shown either in weak, flaccid muscles and a withered looking skin or in muscles encumbered with fat cells resulting in double chins.

To reduce a double chin, sit erect, lifting the chin, and—tense the muscles of the neck and bend the head diagonally down toward the chest, using all the resisting power or tension that you can put into the exercise. Raise the head, still keeping the muscles stiff. Bend the head to each side in the same way.

After this exercise rest a few minutes and turn the head as far as possible to one side, then to the other, then upward and back, using all the tension possible. These exercises will improve the cerebral circulation and usually the slight and hearing as well as the appearance of the face and neck.

Did His Best

"I'VE come to see about the mantles, miss."

"Oh, yes. I'm glad you have come so soon; will you step into the drawing-room?"

The young man stepped; he was pleased with his pleasant reception.

After a little she came in and said, "How do?" So sorry to trouble him, but would he mind if they tried the mantles on? Her daughter's was a trifle too full, and her own a trifle too long, she thought. Perhaps he would be good enough to see.

The young man said he would be only too delighted.

The two elegant mantles in the latest style which were lying across the back of the sofa were then donned, and the young man said he thought they looked charming. Yes, perhaps a little alteration was required, but—if they would excuse him he would be glad if they would let him get on with his work and show him the gas-burners that were requiring fresh mantles.

Why! Wasn't he from Jiggins and Jugglinses?

Oh, no! He was the young man that attended to the mantles from the gas company!

THE PASSING OF CLEMENCY.

THE sun that struggled through the canopy of the tree tops spread a speckled carpet of brown and white and gold before the feet of the little cavalcade. Martindale stood motionless staring after it, but Grieve did not turn or look. The hammock men and the carriers might have been mutes as they swung along with their rhythmic tread.

So the girl who had loved him passed, silently, through the endless aisles of the forest, and was lost to sight.

And for Martindale, as he stood there, the scroll of the past seemed to roll back, and he saw, not the tall, straight trunks of the trees, whose crowns seemed lost to sight, but the stunted, spreading branches of old apple trees in an English orchard standing knee-deep in lush grass, their blossom-crowned heads silhouetted against a sky tenderly blue, as only an English sky can be in Springtime.

And coming to him under the trees with the lovelight in her eyes, Clemency Westgarth.

This vision that showed to the man the girl whom love for him had transformed, whom love for him had undone, perhaps to death, seemed to be like the writing of the hand that traced on the wall over against the king the words of condemnation. It seemed to tell him that those things of his past life to which it belonged might be repented of by blood and tears—but never be blotted out. The wrong he had done this girl must rise up in judgment against him, for if Clemency Westgarth died, at his door would lie her death also.

Stumbled Through Forest

With a groan he turned, hesitated, then stumbled on through the forest, breaking back to where he had left his camp.

He was leaving death and fear behind him. He was going forward to life and hope. At Nokyoro the woman he loved waited for him, he knew that.

But in John Martindale's heart there was no hope.

Those hours in which he had fled—with his voice, with the caress of his arms and the touch of his lips—the girl whose sick fancy had halted him, fresh risen from the grave, seemed to have stifled all his high hopes and stultified his lofty desires.

A "thing wrought with weeping and laughter" for the sport of the high gods, that was what he felt himself to be. In his heart blind desire, but in his eyes the "foreknowledge of death."

Even up at the bungalow, where the grass plains give free access to the cool wind which sometimes swept mercifully across from the distant line of the imprisoning hills, it was a night of moist, unbearable heat.

The doors and windows all stood open wide, and the light from the lamps in certain rooms threw brilliant pathways of yellow radiance across the darkness of the veranda and the surround. The moon, which for the past week had been at the full, flooding the earth with its marvelous tropical splendor, was invisible, and its unexpected absence seemed to emphasize the inky blackness of the sky that appeared to be hanging like a tangible thing between the night and the real world.

Kitty and Baring

In the drawing room, dimly lit by one small light because of the heat, Kitty and Baring sat in perfect silence. The man was pretending to read, but the eyes that followed the printed lines with mechanical attention conveyed no message to the brain. All that he was conscious of was the tragic figure of the woman, who sat waiting, her face expressionless, her body rigid, the whole fierce energy of her being seeming to find outlet in the ceaseless movements of her knitting fingers that appeared to be waging some warfare with an enemy rather than to be engaged in the most peaceful of domestic occupations.

She had taken to knitting as a refuge against the irritability of her over-strained nerves. Its mechanical repetition soothed them as nothing else could have done. It is a nerve cure that is older than cigarette smoking or drug sipping. The secret remedy that has upheld countless women against the petty tyrannies of the Edwins of the Victorian domestic circle.

Suddenly the click of the needles ceased. Kitty started to her feet, the work grasped tight in either hand.

"What's that?" she whispered. "Mr. Baring, what's that?"

Baring laid down his book and listened. To him it seemed as though the profound silence had deepened, the occasional long sobbing breath of hot wind that swept around the verands served only to heighten the succeeding silence. He shook his head.

"I hear only the wind," he said.

The Swamps Are Silent

After a pause the woman sat down. She did not resume her knitting, but sat upright in an attitude of waiting, her eyes straining into the darkness.

Baring abandoned his pretense of reading and sat looking out toward the veranda also.

Outside the shadows of giant moths fretted the yellow pathways of light. Once the silence was broken by a sound he had learned to know, the jarring whirr of a great bat; blinded by the light it had circled too near the window and its musky taint penetrated unpleasantly into the room.

Baring remembered the first evening he had spent in his room, the first time he had smelt the odor as he stood staring out into the darkness and listened to the wicked noises from the distant swamp.

To-night the inhabitants of the swamp were silent.

Were they waiting, as he and this woman were waiting, for the return of the man whose oars their voices had charmed all too wisely for a season?

The thought crossed Baring's mind, as he lit yet another cigarette, linking up the endless chain he had been smoking since night fell.

"Jack?"

It seemed to the startled Baring that the woman's low, sharp cry of joy and the crunch of a man's footsteps on the veranda were simultaneous sounds. Its suddenness took him so much by surprise that the sweat ran from his face and he felt his scalp prickle. Then he saw that the mosquito net had been pushed aside and that a figure stood in the French window.

John Martindale had returned.

For the first moment, however, Baring hardly recognized the man with the face that was so drawn and hard under the bronze as to look in the lamp light the color of dirty clay. Martindale's drill suit was tattered and soiled, his shirt torn open at the neck. His look was so wild and unkempt that at first glance Baring feared that he had been drinking. But his eyes told him that he was mistaken; they spoke of many things, but not of the madness of drink.

CRACKED HANDS ARE HEALED

Woman Suffered for Years. Resinol Worked Immediately

During the Winter many people suffer untold agony from chapped and cracked hands. The manner of washing and drying the hands, the water, exposure, blood and innumerable other things may cause this. To persons suffering in this way, or from any skin eruption, this woman's experience should prove invaluable.

"I highly prize Resinol Soap and Ointment. For years I had suffered with my hands cracking. Had used all kinds of salve, but to no avail, until one day a sample box of Resinol Ointment was sent to our home. Almost discouraged, I had suffered so long with my hands, I opened the package and began reading some of the testimonials. Finally I tried it, and the effect was wonderful. It seemed to take the soreness away, and immediately began to heal, and in a few days (using it every night) my hands were entirely healed. I feel that I cannot get along without Resinol Ointment, and recommend it with pleasure wherever an opportunity presents itself."

"MRS. MATTIE R. SHORT,
"Somerville, Mass."

Resinol Ointment is the most wonderful skin remedy to-day. For sores, pimples, every form of eruptive skin disease, irritation and inflammation, eczema, tetter, milk crust, scald head, ringworm, barber's itch, pimples, blackheads, chilblains, cracked lips, chaps, burns and scalds it is an effectual and reliable remedy. It soothes, relieves the pain and heals. Resinol Soap is also very healing and a perfect toilet soap. TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS; LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

STATE STREET, Nov. 17.—Closing—Although there was a slackening up in the volume of trading in late dealings, the stock market closed with a good, firm tone. Copper shares received inspiration from the fact that the metal market displays a steadily strengthening attitude. One agency has marked up its price to 12.50 cents, which indicates that it is pretty well sold ahead.

The metal shares were fully as strong in the Wall Street list as the others and sentiment is more optimistic now on these issues than at any time of late. The entire market broadened on a fairly large volume of trading. Steel and Union Pacific were the prime favorites. In the case of the former the story was often repeated during the day that the government would withdraw its suit against the corporation.

Union Pacific surplus of $18,000,000 started rumors of a dividend-cutting, but there was nothing authoritative in either case. The commission house buying of Steel shares was excellent. Amalgamated rose 2¾ points and Smelters 3¼ points, both reacting some from these high levels. Smelters was favored with talk of listing the shares in Paris.

In the Boston market copper share prices rose easily and on limited transactions, although considerably more interest was manifested in the Boston list. Calumet & Arizona rose 2¾ points, Copper Range 3½, Alloues 2½, Lake 1¾, North Butte 1, Osceola 3, Wolverine 8 and Calumet & Hecla fractions around.

Curb prices were also strong and active. Bay State Gas was the most active feature, holding around 70 cents. Report has it that its recently acquired Hartel Light Company is erecting a extensive negotiating and is desired by the gas companies of New York. The Hartel company was acquired something over a year ago.

The New York market opened active and strong and continued so, with vigorous and aggressive buying. Activity in copper kept with the advance, which were led by Union Pacific and Steel. The former recorded just week's high record by going to within ¾ of 172.

Steel common almost equalled the recent high. Tobacco securities held strong on the 4th there. American sold at 100 and United Cigar Stores brought 252.

Why You Should Live in the Country

And Why Children, Above All, Should Live Far from the City and Its Deadening Dirt, Noise and Disease

Copyright, 1911, by American Journal-Examiner.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry for the Department of Agriculture, in a recent article said:

No man, woman or child should live in any place where it is impossible to possess an individual plot of earth. A garden is one of the natural and inalienable rights of every human being. It is all very well to have a city house or apartment for a few months in the year, but you are greatly to be pitied if you must spend all your time in it. * * * *

I firmly believe that the way to solve the pure food problem, the congestion problem, the child problem, the labor problem—not to mention a few others—is simply to "get back to the land."

In this connection we recall an editorial printed in these columns more than a year ago on the same subject. Perhaps it is worth reprinting. Here it is:

Human beings, for whom was made this beautiful earth, with its trees and sunshine and clouds, are huddling in narrow, stony, sunless streets.

In New York City five millions of human beings are gathered, living under false conditions. Their city is almost at the edge of the water—and more than half of them have never seen the ocean. A beautiful river flows on one side of the city, the magnificent Hudson—and the majority of those that live in the huge city know as little about the Hudson as they do about the Orinoco.

As it is in New York City—the worst American example of human crowding—so it is to a lesser degree in Boston, Chicago and the other great cities of the world.

Men gather together like swarming gnats. They look only upon the faces of other men—worried, anxious, hurried, tired, bound to brick and stone and iron.

The sun rises and sets, and, unless by accident, the city people see neither the rising nor the setting. They have forgotten that there is a moon and do not distinguish its light from the dull blue electric lamps swinging shadows above the street.

The human race in the cities reproduces faithfully the old Greek story of the men that lived in the cave and who knew of life only as much as was told by the shadows that the fire cast upon the walls.

At whatever cost, by whatever sacrifice, take your children, take yourself into the country. Even if you must go to a dismal, lonely, half-built suburb—go there. Get away from the noise, the stones, the microbes, the dulness.

Let your children see the sky—that wonderful, ever-changing picture that Nature spreads before her children.

The mind within you has back of it a history of millions of years—a history in touch with Nature and Nature's wonders.

Your mind cannot grow, develop or work as it should in the city.

The earth, to which you belong, is the inspiration which you need, and a mind separated from that earth by the stones of the pavement is as unfortunate as a child separated from its mother.

When last you saw the country, how did it look to you?

The brown earth ploughed ready for the seed of Winter grain.

Trees, red, scarlet, yellow and brown, dropping back upon the soil the leaves drawn from the soil.

The wind blowing fresh and clean across the wide spaces.

The sun filling with brilliant light or mysterious shadow every corner of the land.

And above, most beautiful of all, the clouds, fleecy and white, circling around the horizon, and the wonderful, clear blue space, infinite and eternal, above your head.

The country is the home of man. The city is a monstrosity, a sore on the earth's surface, a proof that the dollar still controls civilization, a sign that man is weak, that distance controls him, a demonstration of his lack of imagination, lack of determined longing for liberty.

Future generations will read of the city life as we read to-day of the lives of the cave men, the lives of those that built their homes or platforms out above the lakes, or of those that dwelt high up on the sides of cliffs.

There are millions of square miles unoccupied on this earth's surface—mountains, valleys, rolling hills, beautiful plains—and the millions of human souls that should occupy and enjoy this great domain are cooped up in hideous cities and tenements, stagnating spiritually and intellectually.

If you admire the man who freed his slaves when others kept them bound, emancipate yourself, FREE YOURSELF AND LEAVE THE CITY.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

WANTS UNIFORM RESPECTED

Editor AMERICAN:

Being a reader of your valuable paper I dare say you will not hesitate to grant me a little space to plead for my shipmates and to correct the public's ignorant opinion of an American bluejacket. While in New York for the big review of the fleet I was compelled to change my uniform for civilian clothes when I went ashore because of the disrespect the civilians hold against a sailor in uniform. We were civilians once and probably will be again some day, still we are only too glad to render our services to Uncle Sam, protect the people in time of war and serve dear "Old Glory" for four short years.

Now compare us with the civilians who surround street corners. We are bound as well as they, but with more self respect and entailing dispositions. We are all of good homes, love our mothers and sisters and respect all womankind. We are the athletes, the leaders in all sports. Show a civilian a hammock and he would think it were a dreadnought with a complete battery. Challenge them for a fight, and who would win, the civilian or the "much admired" heavyweight of the navy?

The Sunday American's Music Page

Are you interested in music? The Sunday AMERICAN devotes an entire page to the musical affairs of Greater Boston.

All the news of the opera, the concerts, the recitals are published here. Breezy chat about the artists and music students who are so numerous in Boston is one of the features.

Interviews which are amusing as well as informative with the great singers and instrumentalists are to be found on this page, together with bright stories of the opera houses and concert halls.

The page is edited by Frederick Johns, musical critic of the AMERICAN, whose lively reviews have been one of the features of the Boston AMERICAN during the past three years.

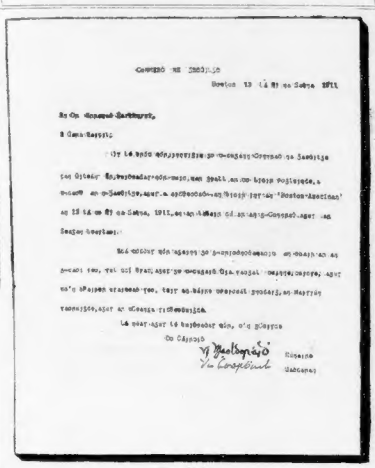
Mr. Johns writes an extremely entertaining lead article for this page each week which deals with musical matters from a critical standpoint, but in a manner free from involved technicalities.

The special aim of the musical editor is to present a page of news. A glance at the Sunday AMERICAN music page will tell you all you want to know about the events of the week.

The AMERICAN music page interests everybody who likes music, not merely a small coterie who talk and think in a technical jargon which has no relationship to the English language.

If you play or sing or enjoy hearing good music performed you are sure to revel in the music page of the Sunday AMERICAN.

Boston Gaelic Alliance Thanks Dr. Parkhurst and American



Translation.

Boston, Mass., Nov. 15, 1911.

The Rev. Dr. Parkhurst:

Dear Sir:

The Gaelic Alliance, of Boston, wish to thank you for your opportune and very sympathetic article, on the Preservation of the Gaelic Tongue, and its Literature, in the Boston AMERICAN, November 13, in which you referred so cordially and so true to the Gaelic League, and to Seaghan Leslie.

We hope that the means employed will achieve the desired goal, and that both We, You and the AMERICAN may live to commemorate the accomplishment of our design, in a free, happy, a rejuvenated, and an Irish-speaking Ireland.

With many thanks, and high regard,

We remain, Rev. Sir, for the Committee,

MARTIN MULROY, Secretary
JEREMIAH CARROLL, President.

The Cold Spell

By WEX JONES

WHEN the sultry Summer's over, when the Autumn leaves of gold,
One and all have fallen earthwards and been trampled in the mold;
When the frost is on the pumpkin, and the corn is in the shock,
When the lucky individ'le's got his greatcoat out of hock;
When the wild geese beat it Northward—or is it South they go?
Then many of our citizens feel chill as Arctic snow.
There's Mr. Charley Murphy, who's frozen in the feet;
He has chased out to Mount Clemens as a pleasanter retreat;
There's the jolly chaps of Harvard, who feel extremely glum
Since the cold spell in their prospects on the football field has come;
There's Caruso, who's so chilly to the "little cake of soap,"
Which he calls petite Trentini as a matrimonial hope.
There's the cop on fixed position, who is frozen to the street,
And thinks with longing of the time he used to pound a beat;
There's the turkey in his coop—he can't kick about his living,
Everything is of the best, but he's thinking of Thanksgiving.
In short the only persons warm are those found in hot water—
The little Chinese Emperor and the Sultan (as they oughter).
